Prepared on Nov 15 10:02z
 By UB

Synopsis: Good morning. Strong HIGH PRESSURE ridging extends s'ward towards the n'n Caribbean islands from HIGH PRESSURE over the w'n Atlantic. Ridging will shift w'ward past 67W through late tomorrow afternoon as a broad deep trough of LOW PRESSURE extends ne'ward towards 44N/37W from near 22N/53W in the central Atlantic. Trough will broaden w'ward towards 65W along the s'n portions through the day on the 17th, keeping the HIGH PRESSURE ridging to the west.

Current Conditions: At 04:00AM buoy near Christiansted was reporting SSE'ly winds of 05kts G11. A second Buoy Southeast of Christiansted was reporting SE'ly winds of 02kts G04kts.

Severe Weather Potential/Advisories: The threat for severe weather is LOW.

Conclusions: Winds will remain light today and tomorrow, with slightly strengthening on the 17th. Swells outside of protected waters are forecast to remain light and favorable around Saint Croix, with wind driven seas within protected waters remaining light in light to moderate winds.
